2. Policy Purpose

As of January 1, 2015, new construction and substantial renovations in municipal buildings will be subject to updated accessibility requirements.

WAWA TTY SERVICES

Bell Relay Service

Bell Relay Service allows communications over the phone with customers who use a TTY. A TTY is a telephone system used by people who are deaf or have hearing loss. Like a telephone, TTY's use telephone lines to communicate; however, the messages are typed into a keyboard rather than spoken and received visually on a monitor or print-out rather than heard. The TTY rings using flashing lights or vibrations.

For organizations that don't have TTY systems, Bell Relay acts as the link between TTY and telephone users, providing an operator who will receive typed messages from the TTY user and read them out to telephone user and then listen to the telephone user's messages and type them to the TTY user. This service is free and does not require users be Bell customers.

How it works:

To talk to a person who is deaf through the Bell Relay Service:

- Call 1-800-855-0511 (customers who are deaf and using TTY to call us, dial 711).
- Give the operator your name, area code and telephone number.
- Give the name, area code and telephone number of the person you are calling.
- Speak slowly so the operator can type what you are saying.
- The operator will place the call and tell you to go ahead when the person you are calling answers.

Guidelines for Determining Contractor Training Requirements

Legislative Requirements

Under Ontario Regulation 429/07 Accessibility Standards for Customer Service, and Ontario Regulation 191/11 the Integrated Accessibility Standards Regulation, the Municipality is required to ensure training of anyone interacting with the public on our behalf, or influencing the development of policies, practices and procedures, including full time, part time and contract employees; student interns; volunteers; contractors; councilors; committee members; and others.

Determining who to train should not just be based on a person's job description, it should be based on what the person does in practice on a regular basis. For example, a company contracted for garbage collection may not have customer service in their job description, however, members of the public may contact the company by phone or in person to ask questions; or the company may communicate with members of the public by leaving garbage items behind that are not disposed of properly, or by providing notices of changes in scheduled pick up, etc.

Contractor - Definition

A contractor refers to an external company or individual who is contracted to provide services for the municipality. This may include public works contractors that apply for contracts through tenders or RFP's; a cleaning company hired to clean the municipal building; a constructing company building a new building; a garbage collection company; consultant services; and so on. Employees in a contract position who are considered a part of the organization would typically be classified as employees, not contractors and would therefore be trained after hire during the typical orientation process.

Training Requirements

Accessibility Policy PR-006 states that the Municipality will ensure that its employees, volunteers, agents and others who deal with the public or other third parties on our behalf, or who are involved in developing policies, practices and procedures that govern the provision of our goods and services will have received or receive training on Policy PR-006 or AODA requirements. Municipal Policy states that contractors must provide documentation indicating that training in accordance with the requirements of Ontario Regulation 429/07 and Ontario Regulation 191/11 have been provided to all staff who will be providing goods and services on behalf of the Municipality. Whether a contractor meets the criteria for training will be at the discretion of the employee hiring the contracted company or individuals. The purpose of this guideline is to achieve consistency by offering questions to consider when determining contractor training requirements as well as a list of recommendations for common contracting companies and individuals.

Questions to Help Determine Contractor Status

- Is the contractor providing a service on our behalf?
- While working for us, will they interact with the public either formally (e.g. being the contact for questions or providing information) or informally (e.g. being stopped and asked for directions)?
- Are services being provided in a place the public typically go (e.g. park, sidewalks)?
- Are the services being provided during regular hours of operation?
- Are the contractors making any decisions regarding the provision of goods and services on our behalf (e.g. what garbage items will or will not be collected)?
- Are the contractors offering advice on any decisions regarding the provision of goods and services on our behalf (e.g. consultants)?

Sample of Contractors who may be excluded (situation dependent)

- Cleaning company that only cleans the municipal building after hours.
- Construction company that is building a new building, working on a construction site (which would be closed to the public), who does not answer inquiries or provide any information to the public and does not interact with third parties on our behalf.

Requests for Proposals (RFP)

When sending out an RFP, the Municipality will ensure to include a clause stating that successful bidders will be required to comply with the training requirements of the Accessibility Standards under the AODA, where applicable, such as;

"Prior to the commencement of any work under this contract, the successful bidder will also be required to provide training on the AODA Accessibility Standards and the Ontario Human Rights Code to all staff working on behalf of the Municipality of Wawa in compliance with the requirements of the Accessibility for Customer Service Regulation 429/07, section 6 and the Integrated Accessibility Standards Regulation 191/11, section 7. The Municipality will offer direction to appropriate training resources and may, at its discretion, provide such training if deemed feasible and appropriate."

Contractors should be requested to sign-off on Form C (Appendix "D"), stating that they have read our policy and have met the training requirements for their staff.

Serving Customers with Disabilities

Accessible customer service is for everyone. It's about taking the time with each and every customer, regardless of level of ability, to ensure that their service needs are being met. Rather than serving in a standardize fashion, be flexible and individualized in your approach. Remember, treating all your customers with individual respect and courtesy is at the heart of excellent customer service.

The following guide will offer some tips on how to serve customers with disabilities in general, over the phone, and according to specific disabilities. Remember, not every customer with a particular disability is the same and there is no one standardized way to serve customers with particular disabilities. This is just a guideline to help you feel more comfortable and prepared in providing accessible customer service.

When serving a customer, it is not necessary to diagnose which disability(ies) they have in order to serve them, rather keep this information in the back of your mind and always use an individualized approach, asking each customer "how may I help you?" or "can I help you?"

Here are some ways you can provide better service to your customers with disabilities:

- Treat people with disabilities with the same respect and consideration you have for everyone else.
- Patience, optimism, and a willingness to find a way to communicate are your best tools.
- Smile, relax, and keep in mind that people with disabilities are just people.
- Don't make assumptions about what type of disability or disabilities a person has.
- Some disabilities are not visible. Take the time to get to know your customers' needs.
- If you're not sure what to do, ask your customer, "May I help you?"
- If you can't understand what someone is saying, just politely ask again.
- Ask before you offer to help - don't just jump in. Your customers with disabilities know if they need help and how you can provide it.
- Look at your customer, but don't stare. Speak directly to a person with a disability, not to their interpreter or someone who is with them.
- Use plain language and speak in short sentences.
- Be flexible in where and how you offer your services.

Serving Customers with Disabilities over the Phone

Here are some ways you can provide better service to your customers with disabilities when providing service over the phone:

- Speak normally, clearly and directly.
- Don't worry about how their voice sounds. Concentrate on what's being said.
- Be patient, don't interrupt and don't finish your customer's sentences. Give your customer time to explain him/herself.
- Don't try to guess what your customer is saying. If you don't understand, don't pretend. Just ask again.
- If you're not certain what was said, just repeat or rephrase what you've heard.
- If a telephone customer is using an interpreter or a TTY line, just speak normally to the customer, not to the interpreter.
- If your customer has great difficulty communicating, make arrangements to call back when its convenient to speak with someone else

Serving Customers with Vision Disabilities

Vision disabilities range from slightly reduced vision to total blindness. A person with reduced vision may have trouble reading street signs, recognizing faces, or judging distances. They may have a very narrow field of vision, be unable to differentiate colours, have difficulties navigating or seeing at night or require bright lights to read. Most people who are legally blind have some vision. Tips for serving customers with vision disabilities:

- Identify yourself when you approach your customer and speak directly to them.
- Speak normally and clearly.
- Never touch your customer without asking permission, unless it's an emergency.
- If you offer assistance, wait until you receive permission.
- Don't touch or address service animals.
- If you're giving directions or verbal information, be precise and clear.
- Don't just assume the individual can't see you.
- Show t to a chair or guide them to a comfortable location.
- Identify landmarks or details to orient your customer to the environment around them.

Serving Customers with Hearing Loss or Deafness

Hearing loss includes problems distinguishing certain frequencies, sounds or words, ringing in the ears and total (profound) deafness. A person who is deaf, deafened or hard-of-hearing may be unable to use a public telephone, understand speech in noisy environments, or pronounce words clearly enough to be understood by strangers.

Tips for serving customers with hearing loss:

- Always ask how you can help. Don't shout.
- Attract the customer's attention before speaking. The best way is a gentle touch on the shoulder or gently waving your hand.
- Make sure you are in a well-lighted area where your customer can see your face.
- Look at and speak directly to your customer. Address your customer, not their interpreter.
- If necessary, ask if another method of communicating would be easier, for example a pen and paper.
- Don't put your hands in front of your face when speaking.
- Be clear and precise when giving directions, and repeat or rephrase if necessary. Make sure you have been understood.
- Any personal (e.g., financial) matters should be discussed in a private room to avoid other people overhearing.
- Be patient. Communication for people who are deaf may be different because their first language may not be English. It may be American Sign Language (ASL).
- If the person uses a hearing aid, try to speak in an area with few competing sounds.

Serving Customers who are Deaf-Blind

Deaf-blind is a combination of hearing and vision loss. It results in significant difficulties accessing information and performing activities of daily living. Deaf-blind disabilities interfere with communication, learning, orientation and mobility. Individuals who are deaf-blind communicate using various sign language systems, Braille, standard PC's equipped with Braille displays, telephone devices for the deaf-blind and communication boards. They navigate with the aid of white canes, service animals, and electronic navigation devices. People who are deaf-blind may rely on the services of Interveners who relay and facilitate auditory and visual information and act as sighted guides. Interveners are skilled in the communication systems used by people who are deaf-blind, including sign language and Braille. Tips for serving customers who are deaf-blind:

- Don't assume what a person can or cannot do. Some people who are deaf-blind have some sight or hearing, while others have neither.
- A customer who is deaf-blind is likely to explain to you how to communicate with them or give you an assistance card or a note explaining how to communicate with them.
- Speak directly to your customer as you normally would, not to the intervener.
- Identify yourself to the intervener when you approach your customer who is deaf-blind.
- Don't touch or address service animals.
- Never touch a person who is deaf-blind suddenly or without permission.

Serving Customers with Physical Disabilities

Physical disabilities include minor difficulties in moving or coordinating a part of the body, muscle weakness, tremors and in extreme cases, paralysis in one or more parts of the body. A person may have a physical disability from birth, such as Spina Bifida; they may have a physical disability that they are born with but that does not present itself until later in life, such as arthritis; or they may have a physical disability that they have acquired from an injury, such as tendonitis. Physical disabilities may be constant, intermittent (come and go, e.g., Multiple Sclerosis), or temporary (e.g. a broken leg). Physical disabilities may affect an individual's ability to hold a pen; twist a doorknob; walk, get in and out of vehicles; stand for extended periods of time; control the speed or coordination of movements; balance; move one's arms or legs fully; climb stairs; reach, pull, push or manipulate objects; or strength and endurance. Tips for serving customers with physical disabilities:

- Speak normally and directly to your customer. Don't speak to someone with them.
- Be patient. Customers will identify their needs to you.
- Wheelchairs and other assistive devices are part of a person's personal space, don't touch, move or lean on them unnecessarily unless it's an emergency.
- Provide your customer information about accessible features of the immediate environment (automatic doors, accessible washrooms, etc.).
- Keep ramps and hallways free of clutter.
- Remove obstacles and rearrange furniture to ensure clear passage.
- If a counter is too high or wide, step around it to provide service.
- Provide seating for those who cannot stand in line.

Serving Customers with Speech or Language Impairments

Speech disability is a partial or total loss of the ability to speak. Typical disabilities include problems with pronunciation, pitch and loudness, hoarseness or breathiness, stuttering or slurring. People with severe speech disabilities sometimes use manual or electronic communication devices.

Tips for serving customers with speech disabilities:

- Just because a person has one disability doesn't mean they have another. For example, if a customer has difficulty speaking; don't assume they have an intellectual or developmental disability as well.
- If you don't understand, ask your customer to repeat the information or write it if necessary.
- Don't interrupt or finish your customer's sentences. Wait for them to finish.
- Be patient and polite, and give your customer whatever time he/she needs to get his/her point across. Making a customer feel rushed will just increase anxiety which often increases the speech difficulty.
- If you are able, ask questions that can be answered yes or no.
- If possible, communicate in a quiet area.
- Patience, respect and a willingness to find a way to communicate are your best tools.

Serving Customers with Learning Disabilities

Learning disabilities affect verbal and non-verbal information intake, retention, understanding, processing, organization and use. People with learning disabilities have average or above average intelligence, but take in and retain information and express knowledge in different ways. Learning disabilities affect reading comprehension and speed; spelling; the mechanics of writing; manual dexterity; math computation; problem solving; processing speed; the ability to organize space and manage time; and orientation, directions and way finding. Tips for serving customers with learning disabilities:

- Don't assume what a person can or cannot do. Just because a person may process information differently or slowly does not mean they are unintelligent. People with learning disabilities have average or above average intelligence; they just take in, process and express knowledge in different ways.
- Learning disabilities are generally invisible and ability to function varies greatly. Respond to any requests for verbal information, assistance in filling in forms.
- Patience and a willingness to find a way to communicate are your best tools.
- When you know that someone with a disability needs help, ask how you can best help.
- Speak normally and clearly, and directly to your customer.
- Take some time - people with some kinds of learning disabilities may take a little longer to understand and respond.
- Be courteous and patient and your customer will let you know how to best provide service in a way that works for them.

Serving Customers with Intellectual or Developmental Disabilities

Intellectual disability affects an individual's ability to think and reason. It may be caused by genetic factors, such as Down's Syndrome, exposure to environmental toxins, such as Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, brain trauma or psychiatric conditions. A person with an intellectual disability may have difficulty with understanding and using spoken or written information, understanding cause and effect, remembering information, articulating or recognizing emotions, problem solving and reasoning, and understanding social norms and appropriate social interaction. Tips for serving customers with intellectual disabilities:

- Don't assume what a person can or cannot do.
- Remember that the person is an adult and unless you are informed otherwise, can make their own decisions
- Use plain language and speak in short sentences.
- Make sure your customer understands what you've said.
- If you can't understand what's being said, don't pretend. Just ask again.
- Provide one piece of information at a time.
- Speak directly to your customer, not to their companion or attendant.

Serving Customers with Mental Health Disabilities

Mental illness is a collection of disorders characterized by symptoms such as extreme mood swings, disturbances in thought or perception, overwhelming obsessions or fears, or high levels of debilitating anxiety. It can take many forms; just as physical illness does.

A person experiencing mental illness may appear extremely uncomfortable and anxious in social situations, have sudden panic attacks, lack energy, have difficulty concentrating or making decisions, have rapid speech and racing thoughts, act impulsively, appear disorganized or distracted, make false statements or inappropriate comments, tell distorted or exaggerated stories, laugh inappropriately, exhibit blunt behaviour, or be perceived as pushy or abrupt. It is important not to take these behaviours personally and to keep in mind that a person may be acting in these ways because they are struggling with hallucinations, anxiety, mood disorders, side effects from treatment medication or other mental health disabilities. Tips for serving customers with mental health disabilities:

- Treat a person with a mental health disability with the same respect and consideration you have for everyone else.
- If a customer asks for services in a blunt or impolite manner, consider that they may be struggling with a mental illness; do not take it personally or become offended; serve them politely and respectfully despite their attitude towards you.

Accessibility Guidelines for the Formatting of Documents and Information

Accessibility Guidelines for the Formatting of Documents

Standard print documents are not accessible to all customers. Some customers with vision loss may require larger print, some customers who are blind may require brail, and some customers with learning disabilities may require an electronic copy so that they can use a personal computer program to read the document to them. Likewise, not all verbal information received in meetings is accessible and a person may require assistive listening devices, closed captioning or an American Sign Language (ASL) interpreter. As a municipality committed to accessible customer service, it is important that we take these varying needs into account, and are flexible in offering alternative formats of documents and information to customers who request them. When accommodating requests, please remember to offer all options available and respect the customer's right to choose which format will best help them to access your services in a way that preserves their dignity, independence, integration and offers equal opportunity.

This guide offers an explanation of alternative formats for print documents, along with considerations and directions around fulfilling requests. It also offers a list of resources for Braille and ASL interpreter services. Please remember to refer to the Municipality of Wawa Accessibility Policy No. PR-006, for policies and procedures on providing alternative formats. Also refer to Form A: Request for Information and Assistance in an Alternative Format, to be submitted when a request for alternative print formats or ASL interpreters is made. Form A can be located under Policy No. PR-006.

Alternative Formats/Options for Print Resources

Read the Information to the Customer

- Customers who cannot read a document due to learning disabilities or vision loss may appreciate having the document read to them.
- This option may work well for filling out forms, paying bills, or reading short notices.
- This option may not work well with lengthy documents, such as reports.
- Please read the document to the customer when requested, do not make them wait for you to serve other easier" customers first.
- Read all of the information word-for-word, offering explanation only as requested.
- Note that this option is not for everyone - it does not provide optimal independence and it may draw attention to the customer, which may make them feel uncomfortable.
- Note that Form A is not required for this request.

Provide an Electronic Copy of the Document

- Providing a customer with an electronic copy of a document allows them to use personal screen reader programs that will read the text to them; adjust font size, colour, contrast; or print on personal Braille printers.
- This option works only for customers with computer access.
- Electronic copies can be provided on memory stick, email, etc.
- Ask the customer what file type will work for them (e.g., Word, Excel, Rich Text Format (RTF)).
- If you have access to the document and are able to fill the request yourself, please do so and submit Form A to the Accessibility Coordinator for informational purposes, writing on the form that the request has been fulfilled.
- If you do not have access to the document, fill out and submit Form A and offer to email the document when ready. If they require the document on another format, offer to mail the document or they can return to pick it up. Indicate delivery preference on Form A.
- Let the customer know approximately how soon they will receive the document.

Large Print

- A customer with vision loss may require a document in a larger font size.
- This option works well with documents that are shorter and don't have a lot of formatting.
- This option may not work as well with very lengthy documents or documents with a lot of structured formatting.
- Documents should be changed to a larger size on the computer and reprinted, not blown up using a photocopier. Photocopy blow-ups are blurry and difficult to read.
- Ask the customer what font size they would like.
- If you have access to the document and are able to fill the request yourself, please do so and submit Form A to the Accessibility Coordinator for informational purposes, writing on the form that the request has been fulfilled.
- If you do not have access to the document, fill out and submit Form A. Offer to mail the document, or they can return to pick it up. Indicate delivery preference on Form A.
- Let the customer know approximately how soon they will receive the document.

Convert Text to Audio:

- Customers who cannot read a document due to learning disabilities or vision loss may appreciate having an audio version of documents.
- This option works well with reports, agendas, meeting minutes and in cases where Braille cannot be provided as soon as needed.
- This option does not work as well with documents such as budgets that include lots of tables, as it does not always read columns and rows well.
- Audio versions can be provided on memory stick, email, etc.
- When a request is made for an audio version, submit Form A to the Accessibility Coordinator. Documents can then be converted in-house using a program called Text Aloud.
- Ask the customer their preferred delivery preference (email, mail, coming back) and indicate on Form A.
- Let the customer know approximately how soon they will receive the document.
- When using Text Aloud, always test the document and correct any pronunciation errors.

Braille

- Braille is a system of small raised dots that are read using the fingertips and can be used to represent everything from words to math and music. For people with vision loss and blindness, it provides the tools to read and write independently, and helps build skills in spelling, grammar and punctuation.
- This option works well for shorter documents and for customers who read Braille.
- This option does not work as well for larger or time-sensitive documents and will not work for customers who do not read Braille.
- Documents in Braille cannot be converted in-house and will have to be sent out to a company that produces Braille documents.
- When a request is made for a document in Braille, submit Form A to the Accessibility Coordinator. Documents can then be made ready and sent out to a Braille printer.
- Always ask the customer what Braille grade level they read at and indicate on Form A.
- Let the customer know the document will be mailed to them and approximately how soon they will receive the document (typically at least a couple of weeks).
- If the information in the document is required before the Braille document will be ready, offer an alternative format in-place of the Braille or to use until the Braille is ready.
- The cost for the Braille conversion should be covered by the department of origin, not the customer.

Plain Language

- Often documents are written using wordy, technical terms that are difficult for readers to understand. Offering a document in plain language means translating it into language that is easy to read, understand and use.
- A document can be translated by verbally explaining what it means, or by offering a written copy that is re-written in plain language.
- This option works well for documents that include a lot of legal and technical jargon; particularly if you have summary documents in plain language readily available.

- This option does not work as well for standardized forms where consistency is required. Though in this case a verbal translation or written translation document that supports the individual in filling out the form as-is could be helpful
- Writing documents in plain language in the first place is the best option, but where not possible due to legal or technical requirements, consider having summary documents available.
- Plain language checklist:
 - Written for the average reader
 - Organize to serve reader's needs
 - Useful headings
 - Use 'you" and other pronouns to speak to the reader
 - Active voice
 - Short sections and sentences
 - Simplest tense possible (present is best)
 - Use base verbs
 - Omit excess words
 - Use concrete, familiar words
 - Use "must" to express requirements; avoid ambiguous word "shall"
 - Place words carefully: Avoid large gaps between the subject, verb and object; put exceptions last; place modifiers correctly
 - Uses lists and tables to simplify complex material
 - Use no more than two or three subordinate levels

Other tips:

- Do not use justified margins - the excess gaps make the article difficult to read
- Use bold, boxes, change in font size, or italics to highlight rather than all caps
- Use headers that describe the contents of sections
- Keep paragraphs simple - only one subject per paragraph
- Put the main message first
- Avoid redundancy
- Use short sentences, an active voice, and common everyday language

Alternative Formats/Options for Print Resources

Writing the Information

- If a customer has difficulty communicating verbally due to hearing loss or a learning disability, they may appreciate communicating with you through writing.
- This option may work well for communicating at service counters or at individual appointments.
- This option may not work well at public meetings or when there is a lot of information to be communicated.
- Always keep a notepad and pen at your desk or service counter.
- Take your time to ensure you print legibly.
- If you cannot read a customer's writing, politely ask them to write it again.

Computer Screens

- Having a laptop hooked up to a projector at meetings can be helpful for customers who have difficulty hearing or understanding verbal information.
- This option works well in meetings, allows you to print copies of the notes afterwards for customers who may need them, and also aids in minutes taking.
- This option may not work as well in meetings where seating arrangement and lighting do not allow for a clear view of a projector screen or for customers who want to know word-for-word what is being said.
- Information can be typed word-for-word, though that may be difficult to read.
- Instead, information can be summarized into salient points, but ensure there is enough information in a point that a person can understand what is being said.
- Follow the CNIB clear print guidelines:
 - Font type and size that is easy to read (e.g., Arial, 14pt or higher)
 - Black text on a white background or vice versa
 - No uppercase (use bold instead for emphasis)
 - Adequate spacing between lines

Assistive Listening Devices

- Assistive listening devices help customers with hearing loss to hear better by overcoming the challenges of distance, background noise and poor room acoustics. They work for both customers who use and do not use hearing aids.
- This option works well for public meetings, council meetings, committee meetings, lectures, and museums.
- This option will not work in locations that do not have the proper equipment.
- When hosting meetings, chose places that have FM systems available, familiarize yourself with the equipment and ensure all equipment is made available for the meeting (e.g., receivers, headsets).
- Advertise that your meetings have Assistive Listening Devices available.
- Have staff available to assist customers to set up the Assistive Listening Device.

American Sign Language (ASL) Interpreters

- Customers who are deaf, deafened or hard of hearing and communicate using American Sign Language (ASL) may appreciate having an ASL interpreter available.
- This option works well for scheduled public meetings or individual appointments.
- This option does not work for unscheduled meetings or over the counter service.
- When a request is made for an ASL interpreter, submit Form A. An ASL interpreter can then be scheduled. Please take down a customer's contact information, particularly email or phone number so that the availability of an interpreter can be confirmed.
- Appointments often need to be booked 2-4 weeks in advanced. If a request made with less than 2 weeks' notice, submit Form A to the Accessibility Coordinator, but warn a customer that there may not be an interpreter available and ask if there is an alternative format they wish to use if there is not one available.
- Costs of interpreters will be covered by the Municipality, not the customer. There is typically a 48-hour cancellation policy with interpreters to avoid cancellation charges. Cancellation charges will be covered by whichever party is responsible for the last-minute change.

ASL Interpreters:

1. Ontario Interpreting Services (OIS)

<http://www.chs.ca/> (Click on Services and scroll to Ontario interpreting Services)

The OIS Mandate is to increase accessibility by providing quality American Sign Language (ASL) English interpreting in a variety of life settings including:

- Medical
- Employment
- Social Services
- Personal Business
- Government Ministries and Agencies
- Education Related Business
- Legal

Sign Language Interpreters can be used in individual discussions, group meetings or for conferences.

Professional sign language interpreters are knowledgeable in the language and culture of both Deaf and hearing people. They provide communication in both ASL and spoken English.

Professional Deaf interpreters are knowledgeable in ASL, gesture, mime and/or other communication strategies to facilitate communication between a Deaf and a hearing consumer, and a hearing interpreter. A Deaf Interpreter (DI) will function as a member of the interpreting team.

The Interpreter will:

- Interpret the intent and spirit of everything that is signed and spoken
- Keep all information confidential
- Provide interpretation only. Interpreter will not give advice or their personal opinion on anything that is discussed
- Accept only those assignments for which they are qualified
- Arrive 15 minutes before the appointment so they can become familiar with the people and the situation
- Consult with the consumers about the set-up of the room, etc.

The consumer should:

- Arrive on time. The sign language interpreter will only wait a limited time, and then will leave. (Waiting time: 30 minutes for meetings up to 2 hours in length; 1 hour for assignments more than 2 hours in length)
- Give the sign language interpreter any materials that are available such as outlines, agendas, presentations or technical vocabulary. This information should be given before the appointment begins.
- Speak or sign at a normal pace.
- If chairing the meeting, make sure that only one person speaks or signs at a time.

How to Book a Sign Language Interpreter:

- Call the Canadian Hearing Society office, and ask for an OIS staff person.
- Give the OIS staff person the following information:
 - Name and telephone number of the consumers.
 - Date, time and location of appointment
 - Name and phone number of contact person for the interpreter
 - The purpose of the appointment
 - The number of people who will be present.
 - Special circumstances such as video recording, media coverage, etc.
- Call 2-4 weeks before your appointment. OIS needs as much notice as possible to book a sign language interpreter for you.
- Any assignment that is longer than two hours, or is complex, requires two sign language interpreters.

Cancellations

If you change or cancel your appointment, call OIS as soon as possible. Cancellations need to be made two business days before the appointment to avoid being charged a fee for a service.

RETURN TO WORK PROCESS - GUIDELINES

The Municipality of Wawa is committed to supporting employees who have been absent from work due to a disability. The following process will outline the return to work process.

Step 1. Initiate the leave and stay in contact with the employee

If an employee needs to take a disability leave, they will advise their Supervisor. The employee and Supervisor will maintain regular contact, with the employee's consent, to address any problems that may arise and facilitate the return to work process.

Step 2. Gather relevant information and assess individual needs

The employee and Supervisor will work together to share information and find the most appropriate accommodation that may be available.

Supervisor

- Provides the employee with return to work information
- Helps resolve any problems with treatment if requested to do so by the employee
- Maintains regular contact with the employee
- Ensures work practices are safe for returning employee
- Assists with identifying accommodations
- Assists with analyzing the demands of each job task

Employee

- Gets and follows the appropriate medical treatment
- Provides updates about their progress, including information about his/her functional ability to perform the job
- Provides his/her health care provider with the return to work information

Health care provider(s), union/workplace representative(s) and health and safety professional(s) may also participate in the process, if needed.

Step 3. Develop a return to work plan

After identifying the most appropriate accommodation, safety considerations and any transitional measures, a written plan will be prepared.

Depending on circumstances, the employee may:

- return to the original position
- return to the original position with accommodation(s) on a temporary or permanent basis
- return to an alternate or modified position on a temporary or permanent basis
- not return at all if hardship is placed on the employer and/or the person cannot complete the fundamental requirements of the job or a position is not available.

Return to work will require the completion of an approved Physicians Return to Work Form that indicates the employee may work.

Step 4. Implement, monitor and update the plan

After implementing the return to work plan, the employee and Supervisor will monitor and review the plan regularly to ensure that it remains effective. If the accommodation is no longer appropriate, they will reassess the situation (step 2) and update the plan.

- * This return to work process does not replace or override any other return to work process outlined in any Collective Agreement or Municipal Policy.

Accommodation Plan

The Municipality of Wawa is committed to providing accommodations for people with disabilities. When an employee with a disability requests an accommodation, the following process will be followed.

Step 1. Recognize the Need for Accommodation

The need for accommodation can be:

- requested by the employee through supervisor or through human resources; or
- identified by a medical professional and health benefits carrier.

Step 2. Gather Relevant Information and Assess Needs

The employee is an active participant in this step:

- Medical information regarding the employee is kept secure and confidential.
- The Supervisor and Health Benefits Carrier may ask for a functional capacity assessment from a Physician or approved medical professional.
- The employee and Supervisor, or the Benefit Carrier, will evaluate potential options.
- An external expert may be involved, at the company's expense.
- The employee can request the participation of a representative at all meetings.

Step 3. Write a Formal, Individual Accommodation Plan

Once the most appropriate accommodation has been identified, the accommodation details are written down in a formal plan, including:

- Accessible formats and communication support if requested;
- Workplace emergency response information if required;
- Any other accommodation that is to be provided.

If an individual accommodation is denied, the Supervisor will provide the employee with the reason for the denial, in an accessible format.

Step 4. Implement, Monitor, and Review the Accommodation Plan

The employee and Supervisor will regularly monitor the accommodation and plan;

- The accommodation plan is reviewed if the employee's work location or position changes.
- The accommodation is reviewed if the nature of the employee's disability changes.
- If the accommodation is no longer appropriate, the employee and the manager work together to gather relevant information and reassess the employee's needs in order for the employer to find the best accommodation measure (Step 2).
